

18.86.030: EXCEPTIONS AND EXEMPTIONS:

This chapter is intended to regulate the construction of advertising signs and the like. Official government signs, street signs, and other public safety signs are hereby declared exempt under this chapter. Other exempt signs include the following:

E. Public Necessity Signs: Signs installed by a unit of the government for control of traffic and other regulatory purposes; including street signs, danger and warning signs, railroad crossing signs, directional or warning signs for public service companies, utilities or institutions, or signs erected by or on the order of a public officer in the performance of his public duty.